

Abstract of the Disclosure

A bearing arrangement for at least one gearwheel, particularly for a reversing wheel of a reverse gear in a transmission housing of a manual transmission, having a gear that is rotatably supported on a gear axle. At least the one end of the gear axle is fixed or supported in the transmission housing. One side of the gear axle is received in a bearing element which is bolted within the transmission housing from the outside via a fixing element.